Avoid the Financial Cliff Engage a Divorce Financial Planner

VANCOUVER, B.C. (January 15, 2013) – The Divorce Financial Planners (DFP) group has expanded and updated its member information.

January is the month more divorce applications are filed than any other. Learning where to get divorce financial expertise has never been more timely.

The DFP Vancouver group is one of the public's best sources for qualified financial expertise, typically not offered by family lawyers. All DFP Vancouver members have the distinguished Certified Financial Planner designation as well as additional education and experience in financial divorce planning.

Divorce Financial Planners provide financial education and advice that enables couples to make informed, objective financial decisions in the context of the legal process. They know that getting help to understand the financial impact of divorce – and their financial options - are the most powerful things divorcing clients can do when negotiating their divorce terms.

Since inception, the group has provided the public with a number of tools to help with the divorce process. Available on their website (www.divorcefinancialplanners.ca), these include checklists prior to and post-divorce, research results on some of the costs of divorce and useful links to a variety of sites.
